The SCABB Annual Meeting is a great opportunity to present original investigations. Having an abstract accepted at the SCABB Annual Meeting is not only an honor but can serve as a nice entry into a CV. There is no limit to the number of abstracts an individual may submit and it is a great experience to present whether in oral presentation or poster presentation. All abstracts accepted will be published in the 2017 Abstract Journal which will be distributed at the 2017 Annual Meeting.

The abstracts must be submitted in electronic form, reflecting original investigation, in the specified format as designated by Objective, Methods, Results, and Conclusion. See abstract submission guidelines on scabb.org. All abstract submissions are peer reviewed by a panel of committee members to judge the scientific merit of each submission. There is no guarantee of acceptance but there is a reasonably high acceptance rate of appropriately structured submissions, if entered prior to the deadline. Abstracts must be submitted by the deadline of February 24, 2017.
