Thus, they are adding a special program to the 2010 annual meeting which targets the needs of reference lab and experienced hospital technologists who handle complex patient problems. The program starts on Sunday with the SCABB Award lectures featuring the well known and entertaining Dr. Harvey Alter from the NIH. The afternoon includes an "Ask the Experts" session, posters and round table discussions of complex problem cases over bowls of chips and salsa (a Texas tradition). You won't want to miss the first session on Monday entitled "Moulds in the Morning". For the first time ever, the three Moulds will join forces to share their 100 years+ experience in the field and update you on several blood group systems as well as molecular typing. Monday afternoon will be dedicated to the hemolyzing patient with both serological and clinical presentations. Join us in sunny San Antonio on March 21 & 22 for a truly unique workshop.
